ITEM 12b

Posting Resident Directory on DwellingLIVE

The main concern with any publication of private homeowner information is protection of privacy. We developed the District's website that requires password access and the same goes for the dwellingLIVE website – each homeowner who logs onto this website must enter a username and password.

A request was made of the CBRA to look into the possibility of making the community resident directory available to our homeowner electronically and the obvious place for that would be on the dwellingLIVE website since it is password-protected, much more so than the District's website.

DwellingLIVE has a page for community news and notices and the electronic file for the resident directory could be posted on this page for property owner access. This would not preclude the CBRA from providing a hard copy of the directory to any homeowners who wish to have one.

The CBRA is asking for Board permission to post the Resident Directory on the dwellingLIVE website.
